

Dragon Tooth

by Lillyflower01

Category: How to Train Your Dragon

Genre: Drama, Horror

Language: English

Status: In-Progress

Published: 2013-03-25 01:27:56

Updated: 2014-01-17 20:12:40

Packaged: 2016-04-26 14:45:18

Rating: T

Chapters: 10

Words: 13,474

Publisher: www.fanfiction.net

Summary: Alvin time-travels to the past and kid-naps Hiccup as a baby. Hiccup grows up a slave to Alvin and the rest of Berk's teenagers must get him back. But why are they and Alvin the only one's who remember what truly happened?

1. Chapter 1

CHAPTER ONE

>Alvin smacked his hand on his forehead. This was getting ridiculous. He needed to think of a new method. But what? Just then Savage entered.
"what?" snapped Alvin, irritably.

>"I think I may have found an answer to your problem" said

Savage
"well" cried Alvin "tell me!"

>"one of the guards discovered a seer nearby" answered Savage "of we can get her, she may be able to help with your problem."
"bring me this seer" demanded Alvin

>The guards Alvin sent were gone for at least three days but they eventually returned with a cage covered by a tarp. Savage immediately brought the cage to Alvin. He lifted the tarp to reveal a young girl. Her orange, wavy hair reached a bit past her shoulders.
"I thought you were bringing me a seer!" cried Alvin, outraged "this is a little girl."

>Savage was about to answer but the seer got there first.
"young, but more powerful than you could ever know"

>She lifted her head to reveal her face. One glance at her face would shake anyone to the core. Her face was pale and dirty. Her lips were red, but dry and her long, black hair was slightly matted by dirt and blood. There seemed to be a marking of an eye on her right cheek. But the worst was her eyes, or where her eyes should have been. Her eyelids seemed to be stitched shut.
"how can I defeat a dragon rider?" asked Alvin, getting straight to the point.

>"you're being defeated by a fourteen year old" the seer said, shortly
"well" snapped Alvin, annoyed "he has a dragon"

>The seer did not seem intimidated.
"if I tell you how" answered the seer "you must do something for me."

>"what do you want?" asked Alvin
"for you to let me go" answered

the seer

>"alright, fine" snapped Alvin "now tell me how"
"you shouldn't try and train dragons yourself" explained the seer, with a slightly misty tone "but stop them from discovering to train dragons themselves"

>The eye on her cheek was glowing now.
"but that's impossible!" cried Alvin

>"don't try and kidnap him now" she continued on "but before"
"but it's already happened" growled Alvin "how can I stop them from training dragons if they already know how!?"

>"change history" answered the seer
"and how am I going to do that?" snarled Alvin

>"use this" the seer held out a small golden object "It's a time travel device, it will help you change history"
Alvin studied it for a moment.

>"how do I use it!?" he demanded
"I'll help you" stated the seer "let me out of this cage and I will take you to the past. It will only work with help from a seer anyways."

Alvin nodded and savage opened the cage so the seer could step out. Once she was standing in front of Alvin, she grabbed the little gold object.

>"hold the other end!" she demanded when Alvin let go "or you won't come."
She started to mutter things that no-one could hear under her breath, the eye glowing, and everything started to spin. Soon they were standing in the great hall, only no-one was there.

>"where is everyone!" demanded Alvin
"they're coming" stated the seer "only they will not be able to see me because I have placed a cloaking device on myself."

>"fine" growled Alvin
Soon another Alvin came in, this one looked a few years younger.

>"who are you!" he demanded, when he saw the other him
"I am from the future" stated the first Alvin "I must tell you something."

>Silence.
"well" asked the past-Alvin "what is it?"

>"well" explained future-Alvin "Stoick's son will become a dragon trainer, so you have to kidnap him as a baby before he can train the dragon. So, Berk won't have dragons"
"okay" stated past-Alvin "but if I find out that you aren't really me from the future, I will take the boy and smack you with him."

>"alright" stated future-Alvin "I will be going now."
The little gold item glowed in the seer's hand. Soon, they were back to the present.

>"I'll go home now" stated the seer
"but" stated Alvin "you have to come back if I need help. I hate admitting i need help"

>"alright" sighed the seer "but don't put my in a cage or attack randomly this time!"
"fine" stated Alvin "I'll just send my men to the mountain to get you. Or you could stay here. It'd be easier to get you. But what's your name"

>"alright." sighed the seer "fine. I'll stay. For my name, just call me Iris."
Savage went to set up a room for Iris.

>"so" asked Alvin "the boy is here now"
"yes" sighed Iris

>"you there!" cried Alvin, pointing to a random guard "bring the boy here!"
"yes sir!" cried the guard and he hurried away.

>They didn't wait long before the guard returned pulling Hiccup in by the collar of his shirt.
"oh" smirked Alvin "this is going to be fun."

2. Chapter 2

Hiccup groaned and groggily opened his eyes. His eyes widened in horror. He was in the dragon arena. And now that he thought about it, was that growling he heard? He slowly rolled over to come face to face with a monstrous nightmare. It really is a Monsterous nightmare. They stared at each other for a moment before Hiccup jumped up and ran to the other side of the arena. He knew he hadn't been able to retrieve the lost weapons, but why lock him in with a dragon that would tear him limb from limb. After being chased around by an angry monstrous nightmare for a while, Hiccup noticed Alvin sitting in a large chair, watching. Hiccup raced to the door, grabbing the bars on it.

>"alright!" he yelled "I'm sorry I failed at finding the weapons that you lost! But please let me out!"
He gave a small yelp as the nightmare grabbed his shirt with his teeth and pulled him down, pinning him to the ground with his talons. Right when Hiccup thought it was probably over, some outcasts pulled the dragon back into it's cage. Most people would've sighed in relief, but in Hiccup's case, more pain probably followed. Two outcasts pulled him to his feet by his arms as Alvin walked in. He slapped Hiccup hard across the face, causing his breath to come in sharply. Hiccup kept his face turned to the right in order to not look at Alvin's face, and kept his eyes downcast.

>"take him to his cell" ordered Alvin "and don't bring any food for the rest of the day."
Hiccup bit his tongue to keep himself from crying out in protest. Normally he could go one day without food. But this make's a week! And only four out of those seven days had he gotten water. His cell was at the end of a long hallway with quite a few turns, and it was one of the larger ones. He stumbled in as the outcasts finally made their way to the cell. There wasn't much in the cell. It was completely gray, with a bared door, and a bed. Hiccup collapsed onto the floor, not even bothering to try and reach the bed. He stared at the ceiling. He wondered what his life would be like if he wasn't stuck here. He didn't know, but it had to be better than this, right? He sighed, at least the outcasts didn't kill him. He sat upright as he heard footsteps walking down the hallway. Alvin came around the corner, looking rather angry about something. Hiccup cringed away in the cell, even though he knew it was to no avail. Alvin stormed into the cell and grabbed Hiccup by the collar of his shirt, lifting him clean off the ground.

>"what do you mean you can't find those weapons?" Alvin snarled "you can't even brave a dragon for ten minutes."
He threw Hiccup back on the floor, so he was laying at his feet.

>"you're going to go and look for those weapons again tomorrow" growled Alvin "and you won't come back until you've found them. Got it?"
Hiccup nodded from the floor without even looking up.

>"good" seethed Alvin "and if you come back empty handed, I'm not going to feed you. And i'm not giving you any food until you come back with the weapons either."
Hiccup bit his lip. He didn't think he'd be able to go longer than a week without food. Alvin stormed away but Hiccup didn't get up from his position. His head was pounding and he was going to have to go out and find some lost weapons tomorrow. Hopefully the pain in his ribs and his major headache, that may or may not have come from a small concussion, would be gone by then. These were his last thoughts before he fell asleep. The next day Hiccup woke up with a dull pain in the side. He groaned as hunger gnawed at his stomach. He had just stood up when an outcast came around the corner and unlocked the door. He pushed Hiccup towards the great hall where Alvin was waiting. When Hiccup came in, Alvin went over what he said earlier with no less venom in his voice. With that said, Hiccup walked out of the great hall towards the more wild parts of the island. Just as he was nearing the end of the village, Iris seemed to pop up out of nowhere. Hiccup jumped a bit. He wasn't as scared as Iris as he was of Alvin (she even helped him sometimes) but he was always at least a little bit afraid of everyone, and Iris wasn't an exception.

"hi" he mumbled, trying to slip by
>But she grabbed him by the back of his jacket and pulled his back. He noticed the slight smell of cooked salmon on her and tried to ignore the hunger tearing at his stomach.
"I heard that Alvin's given up feeding you" stated Iris
>Hiccup fidgeted for a bit but eventually nodded.
"here" she held out a salmon "you can't go on a search on an empty stomach."

>"thank you" sighed Hiccup, taking the salmon
Iris nodded and left, probably to help Alvin with something. Hiccup ate the salmon and set off to find the weapons. Thirty minutes later he was already wishing he would find the weapons soon. He didn't want to run into any wild dragons. But it felt like this island could go on forever. Hiccup had been searching most of the day, and there was only two hours until sunset when he finally saw the weapons. He sighed in relief and ran towards them. But he froze ten feet away. Right in front of the pile was a large black sleeping dragon. He'd never seen this dragon before so he didn't know what it was. He quietly observed the dragon and found it was injured and wound with rope. For the first time in his life he felt a pang of sorrow for a dragon. He grabbed the weapons and made to walk away but he suddenly felt someone watching him. He spun around to see the dragon staring right at him. He wanted to walk away but found he couldn't. He for some reason couldn't leave this dragons here, he somehow felt like he knew it. He looked into it's eyes and saw what he felt everyday of his life, fear. He cautiously walked towards the dragon. He for some reason didn't want it to be killed or even injured. He grabbed a dagger from the pile of weapons and knelt before the dragon. He closed his eyes and places a hand on the dragon's side. The breathing was labored and he could feel it's heartbeat speed up. He felt a connection to the dragon right then. All his life he'd been trapped and injured and afraid. Then here this dragon is tied up and scared, and a hurt tail fin. He didn't know why he did it, or even what he was doing, exactly. He took a deep breath, placed the dagger again the rope and started to saw back and forth. He kept his eyes on the rope even though he could feel the dragon's eyes burning into him. As he finally cut the last rope, the dragon jumped up and Hiccup sat there, unsure of what to do. He was terrified and wondering why he'd just cut free a ferocious dragon. But instead of hurting him, like Hiccup had thought he would, the dragon gave a loud roar and bounded away. Hiccup sat there, stunned, as it started to rain. He looked at his reflection in a small puddle that had formed. The outcast symbol that had been marked into his cheek at young age shone brightly white on his skin. Touching it lightly, he sighed and got up, gathering the weapons in his arms, and headed back towards the great hall.

* * *

>Yay! Review or I will NOT put up the next chapter. Sorry, that's just how I roll. It's so i know u want the next chapter. It will explain how Toothless got shot down in the next chapter. **

3. Chapter 3

Sorry it took so long to update. I was a little busy. Enjoy!

* * *

>CHAPTER THREE
Stoick watched the teens cautiously. They had started acting a little strange. All of their parents had said that they had asked about where their dragons were. Whatever that meant. They had the healers look at them, but they said the teens were fine. A few of them had even asked where Hiccup was. This really worried Stoick and their parents.

Hiccup had disappeared thirteen years ago. He was most likely dead. Something wasn't right. The teens were in a small huddle, whispering hurriedly. Something they did a lot. Stoick couldn't hear the conversation, but he could tell from their faces it was important, at least to them.

* * *

>{outcast island}
The ten outcast warriors looked down at the rope. They were all covered in armor and fully armed, ready to bring a ferocious night fury back. But it seemed gone.

"where could it have gone?" wondered Savage, who was leading the search "and how did it get out?" it was silent for a moment before Savage barked a new command "alright! Head back to the great hall and report the dragon missing! Alvin will know what to do from there! But bring the rope! It may lead to clues!"

>The team marched back towards the village, three of them holding the severed rope. They opened the doors to the great hall to see Alvin pacing back and forth, and Hiccup standing by the far wall.
"where's the dragon!" demanded Alvin

>"we want to know that too" answered Savage "we got there and the dragon was gone, but the ropes were still there"
Alvin looked over the ropes.

"um" asked one of the outcast warriors quietly "why is he here?" he gestured to Hiccup

>"he found the weapons yesterday" growled Alvin, tired of being asked the same stupid question "I'm letting him stay out of his cell today. But this was his second try! So he can't leave the hall."

There was a bit more silence as Alvin looked more closely at the severed ropes.

>"these were cut" announced Alvin "we have a traitor among us. Someone has freed the dragon"
Hiccup felt his insides squirm with fear. What if they figured out he had cut the rope.

"Savage" demanded Alvin "you make sure the boy doesn't leave. I'm going to see if Iris knows who cut the rope."

>Alvin left and made his way towards Iris's house, barging in without knocking.

"what!" cried Iris irritably, she seemed to be the only one not afraid of Alvin "can't you do anything yourself."

>"I need you to tell me who cut the rope on the night fury we shot down" demanded Alvin, ignoring Iris's comment.
"you mean I shot down" corrected Iris

>"just tell me!" cried Alvin
Iris sighed and concentrated hard.

"well" demanded Alvin, once the eye on her cheek had stopped glowing "who is it?"

>"the boy" answered Iris "he found the dragon while looking for the weapons."
"arg!" cried Alvin "why?"

>"fate will come in no matter what happens" answered Iris, calmly "fate will happen one way or another."
"argh!" yelled Alvin

He stormed out, slamming the door on his way out. He grabbed a long thin black whip before storming inside the great hall. He stormed over to Hiccup, whipping him across the cheek and chest. A long thin line swept from below Hiccup's eye to his rib cage. He fell to the floor with a pained groan.

"why we're you so stupid!" seethed Alvin "you let free a night fury!"

>He grabbed Hiccup by the collar of his shirt and lifted him to eye level.
"do you have any idea how important that was?" snarled Alvin "how idiotic are you!? Letting a night fury free!"
"that was a night fury?!" gasped Hiccup

Alvin yelled in frustration as he threw Hiccup back on the ground. Hiccup groaned as Alvin fumed above him.

>"what am I supposed to do now?!" Alvin yelled
"why don't you send him Hiccup to find the night fury"

They all turned to see Iris walking through the door.

>"and why should I do that?!" snarled Alvin
Iris half dragging half leading Alvin to the other side of the room.

>"because" sighed Iris "if he could tame the night fury before, then he should be able to find it now."

Alvin thought about this for a moment before deciding that he wanted his dragons to be trained.

>"alright" declared Alvin, storming up to Hiccup "you're going to find the night fury."
"what?" groaned Hiccup

>"are you deaf?" yelled Alvin "you are going to find this dragon!"
Hiccup stumbled to his feet, his head pounding. He didn't know why he was being sent to find the dragon but he knew better than to question Alvin.

* * *

>{somewhere in a forest}
Toothless paced back and forth as he tried to piece everything together. He was stuck here with no way to ever get off and was just starting to realize that something was very wrong on this island. He gets shot down in front of some weapons that the boy who used to ride him was sent to find, he didn't recognize him but let him free anyways, and had the outcast symbol on his cheek.

Toothless didn't know what was going on but needed to find out. Hiccup was obviously mistreated here so, if Toothless ever saw him again, he'd need to make sure he stayed away from that evil place.

Even of Hiccup didn't recognize him. Toothless definitely remembered him and needed to make sure he was safe.

* * *

>All I have to say this chapter is, Review!

4. Chapter 4

Sorry it took so long to update. I feel really bad. I was busy and had very bad writers block. I hate writers block! Here's the next chapter (finally)!

* * *

>CHAPTER FOUR
Hiccup waited in front of the great hall. The dagger secured in his belt pressed against his thigh and his knuckles were white from grasping the satchel on his shoulder. Inside was some wound up rope and a salmon.

"what are you still doing here?!"

Hiccup jumped as Alvin stormed up behind him.

"get going!"

Hiccup jumped and quickly made his way out of the village. He was quickly out on the dry rocks by himself, with no one to be seen for miles around. How was he supposed to find a dragon in this whole island? Sure, it's a dragon, but still, he was searching an entire island! He groaned and rested against a large rock. Suddenly a large creature jumped out from behind him. He stared in shock at the dragon. How long had it been watching him? And how could he have not noticed? He gave a small yelp as the night fury jumped for him. He uttered a small groan as his head connected with the rock.

* * *

>Hiccup woke up in a cave, stuck under some tree roots. A frightened yelp escaped him as the night fury jumped down from a ledge. Was it going to eat him? It just stared at him, and he stared right back. He wasn't sure what to do. What could he do? He was trapped under a tree root, in a cave, with a night fury. That's just wonderful. But why hadn't the dragon eaten him yet? He still felt that strange connection when he looked deep into the dragon's eyes. But he didn't know why. And it scared him.

* * *

>Iris stared doubtfully at the piece of parchment in front of her. A ransom letter? Seriously? Alvin's been holding onto that boy for thirteen years! And now he wants to ransom him off! And why? Why was she writing the letter! Couldn't he write his own letter! Why did he want to ransom the boy off anyways? And where was he? He'd been missing for almost two days. How is Alvin supposed to ransom someone he couldn't even find? Iris rubbed her temples. Why did she help Alvin in the first place? And why did she stay here?

It was stressful. She sighed, and finally finished up the letter. She walked towards Alvin's house, dropping it off on the table, seeing as he wasn't there, and headed outwards. She should never have accepted to help Alvin. She was finally realizing that Alvin had been using her power for evil. She was dismayed knowing that her spell couldn't be reversed right now.

It would have to wait until the boy proved himself, or something like that. She sighed. Disappointed that she had fallen for such trickery. She messed with fate itself. That's a crime that most people (or seers) wouldn't dare do. Of course, at the time, she wasn't completely sure what she was doing. She sighed. She shouldn't worry about this too much. There's nothing she can do about it. Of course, now the other one was safe. But maybe, she hadn't messed fate up. Maybe it could stitch itself back together. Maybe, just maybe, there was hope.

* * *

>"what do you think happened?"

Astrid dragged the stick across the ground, causing a thin line to break the dirt apart.

"I don't know." she sighed "he just sort of, disappeared."

Ruffnut nodded. The two girls were talking over the strange turn of events. They still didn't understand how Hiccup had just magically disappeared. And no one remembered him. Well, not well at least. But now they were suddenly at war with the dragons again. What happened? Just then the rest of the teens sauntered up.

"what're you talking about?" asked Snotlout

"we're trying to figure out what happened to Hiccup" explained Astrid

"who?"

The rest of the teens had panic written on their faces. Except for Fishleggs. He looked highly confused. Astrid hadn't noticed the girl with wavy, dusky red hair and hazel eyes standing behind the rest of the teens.

"oh" cried Astrid "no-one, Taylor"

Before Taylor could say anything Soick's voice came through the trees.

"coming dad!"

Taylor quickly ran off.

"that was close" sighed Astrid

"I'm sorry" spoke up Fishleggs "but, should we know who Hiccup is?"

* * *

>Dun! Dun! Dun! Cliff hanger! Sorry, it wasn't terribly long. But what did you think? Review! Please? :)

5. Chapter 5

Hey. Sorry I haven't posted for awhile. I've been really busy. Thank you mk94 for giving me the idea that Toothless feed Hiccup fish, I wasn't thinking of what Toothless would be feeding him. A Guest asked if Iris was from Once Upon A Time, yes and no. Iris is actually my best friend, but I did get the idea from Once Upon A Time. That show rocks!

* * *

>CHAPTER FIVE

"yes!" Astrid cried stomping up to Fishleggs "we should know who Hiccup is. He's our friend."

"but I've lived here my whole life" cried Fishleggs in distress "and I've never seen this guy before!"

"but he only disappeared a few months ago!" cried Ruffnut

"what?" wondered Fishleggs

"well we weren't really friends with him until a year ago" reasoned Tuffnut

"huh?" Fishleggs tried to think "I don't remember him"

"no?" wondered Snotlout "he was the one who trained dragons."

"what!" cried Fishleggs "someone trained dragons! I'm so confused!"

He ran off yelling with everyone else staring after him in confusion.

"he doesn't remember." breathed Astrid

* * *

>Hiccup blinked awake. The dragon wasn't anywhere to be seen. He sat up. He had been stuck here for about a week. On the third day the night fury had finally let him out of the tree roots that had pinned him to the ground. He jumped as the dragon slinked back into the cave.

He was still a little jumpy around the night fury but he'd realized long ago that the dragon wasn't going to eat him. The dragon dropped a fish by his feet. That's what they'd been eating for the past week. It actually wasn't as bad as Hiccup had thought. He had eaten weird things before, as he'd been a prisoner on outcast island. At least the dragon was feeding him. Maybe this was even better than being stuck in the outcast prison. It probably was.

"do you have a name?" wondered Hiccup

He peered curiously at the dragon. It hadn't hurt him for a week. It must be friendly. He gingerly held out a hand. The dragon nuzzled his head against Hiccup's hand. Hiccup smiled.

"now for a name" sighed Hiccup "I can't keep calling you dragon now, can I?" he thought for a few minutes "how about...Toothless."
>He didn't know why he chose that name. It just popped into his head. He felt strangely attached to it. Like it was the name of an old friend he'd lost.

"Hello Toothless" he smiled

* * *

>"where is he?" yelled Alvin

"I-I don't know" stammered savage

"well" snarled Alvin "I've already told them that I'd have the boy ready! They're coming in two days!"

"well" thought savage "maybe if we sent out a search party-"

"just get me Iris!" screeched Alvin

Savage nodded vigorously and scurried off to find the seer. Alvin groaned. This was not working out as he'd hoped. It wouldn't have made any difference if he had kidnapped the girl instead. Savage suddenly came back with Iris trailing behind.

"you said this would work!" screamed Alvin

Iris signed.

"well." she reasoned "you're not loosing a battled to a teenager, are you?"

"but he's not helping me either!" yelled Alvin "he's not training any dragons!"

"that wasn't part of the deal!" cried Iris

"the point is" snarled Alvin "he's not of any help to me. So, I'm sending him over to the berserkers. But I can't find him anywhere!"

"not my problem" grumbled Iris

Alvin sent her an angry glare but didn't hurt her. He needed her for this.

"I need you to find him." he said

"No"

>Alvin let out a yell and slapped her across the face. Unfortunately, he had not seen Iris in action. She let out a scream and launched herself at Alvin. Savage attempted to get her off his master but she would not move. When Savage finally removed her. Alvin had a large bruise on his left cheek and scratches all over.

"how dare you!" screeched Alvin

Iris sent a quiet snarl his way.

"get this off my island"Alvin demanded

"there'll be no need to direct me off." declared Iris "I don't want to stay here anyways."

And with that she waved her hand and disappeared. Alvin let out an angry cry.

"well!" yelled Alvin to Savage "don't just lazy about! Find her! We need her to find the boy!"

Savage let out a scared cry.

"I'm not here!" he screamed as he ran out "I'm gone!"

* * *

>Review please :)

6. Chapter 6

AAHHHH! WHat do you mean? I didn't make you wait forever for the next chapter. Okay, so i did. I'm so sorry, but I usually write them on my phone and then email them to myself and then paste the chapter on here, but my email wasn't working. Then my friend showed my that i could just write the chapter on the computer. (I don't know why I never figured that out before) I'm not even sure if anyone even checks this story anymore, I'm so sorry! :(

On another note, who saw the httpd 2 trailer? I keep finding it on youtube. I think I've watched it at least seven times. haha! It looks so amazing! I, also, saw the 'view to a skrill' episodes of Defenders of Berk and I was a bit disappointed when Alvin died. But I'm sure he'll come back. He was an awesome villain. I'm not sure if that's a new episode or not, I'm really behind on Defenders of Berk. I know, it's really sad.

Anyways, enough of my blabbering, enjoy. :)

* * *

>Hiccup smiled as he walked through the island with Toothless. His first real smile. He couldn't see any outcasts but he did see a lot of wild dragons. He wasn't completely terrified of them anymore. He'd been going here with Toothless a lot lately, and it sure was better than being stuck in a cave all the time. He was a lot more happy then he had ever been.

Now that he had grown comfterable around Toothless, all he really wanted to do was ride him. Unfortunately, with his injury, Toothless couldn't go that far. Maybe they could steal a ship and get off this island.

* * *

>Savage guided the search party party through he island.

"Do we really have to go everywhere?" asked an outcast

"Yeah," Agreed another "I mean, there are wild dragons everywhere."

"Well," snapped Savage "The seer could be anywhere. I'm sure she wouldn't be fazed by a couple wild dragons. Besides, you guys are vikings, man up!"

He led the search party still farther, with lots of grumbling. They climbed over a rather large rock and Savage smirked at what he saw.

"Oh this is perfect." He smirked

He sauntered over to the boy, motioning for the rest of the group to stay back.

"Well," Smirked Savage "I see you found the dragon for us. It only took you a week."

Hiccup stumbled backwards as he looked up at the outcast's face.

"H-How did you find me?" He gasped

Beside him, Toothless growled.

"Don't worry," Smirked Savage "You won't be here for too much longer."

* * *

>Hiccup sat in his old cell again. he felt like crying. He had been free, but now he was stuck here again.

Toothless was being kept with the other dragons, They'd tied him up so he couldn't attack as they headed back to the village. Hiccup still remembered all the outcasts staring at they were dragged by.

He flinched as Alvin stormed into the cell, the cruel black whip curled up in his hand.

"how did you do it?" He demanded

"Do what?" Asked Hiccup, timidly

"Train the dragon!" Yelled Alvin

"Well," Stated Hiccup "I didn't exactly train him-"

He was cut off as the whip slashed across his stomach.

"I don't know!" He cried "I just felt like I had this sort of connection with him!"

Alvin growled.

"Fine," He stated "If you wont tell me. You can show me."

He dragged him off and threw him into the arena where he promptly let loose a deadly nadder. Hiccup stared at it, frozen, for a few seconds. He had to do something. But he wasn't quite sure what.

Alvin said he had trained the dragon, but it felt more like the dragon had trained him. Then he got an idea. It was crazy, but maybe-just maybe- it would work. He slowly reached his hand out to the dragon, trying to show it that he was friendly. The dragon stared at his hand for a moment and Hiccup had a vision of his hand being chomped off. He didn't want that, he rather liked his hand. But he forced himself to keep his hand outstretched.

The dragon looked Hiccup up and down, as if calculating how good a chance this little human had of hurting him. he seemed to decide he was okay, and he slowly reached his head out and nuzzled Hiccup's hand. Hiccup smiled and scratched the dragon's head. This wasn't that hard.

Suddenly he felt like his head was exploding. He fell to the floor, clutching his head. He wasn't sure what was happening, but he didn't like it.

Suddenly he saw flashes of himself and Toothless. He saw himself standing in a cove with Toothless, scratching the dragon's head. Then he was flying on the beast's back. He saw the two of them fighting a great big beast of a dragon. He saw others things too, but they went by so fast he could barely even see them. The few that he could see were him and a great big viking in what seemed like a very serious argument, himself riding Toothless with a girl behind him, and him and a bunch of teens standing in an arena.

He forced his eyes to snap open. He didn't want to see anymore, yet he did. His breath was heavy and labored and his body felt achy.

"Get up." Demanded the deep voice of Alvin

Hiccup tried to force himself up, and promptly fell back down again. Alvin groaned and had some outcasts drag him back to the cell.

"You better fix yourself before tomorrow." Stated Alvin as Hiccup was thrown back into the cell "The Berserkers aren't going to take you if you're broken."

Hiccup felt like he'd punched in the gut.

"W-what?" He managed

"Oh, yes." Stated Alvin "Did I forget? I sold you to the Berserkers."

Hiccup felt horrified. The Berserkers would take him just to play with him. Beat him until he was truly broken. Torture him until he was worse than dead. At least Alvin tried to come up with a reason to beat him.

'Everything comes with a price.' thought Hiccup 'I had the best time of my life, only to come back and find out that I'll be worse off than before.'

* * *

>Astrid pressed her ear against the wall of Stoick's house. She could hear him talking to Taylor, who would've known that Hiccup had a sister?

"What are they saying?" Asked Ruffnut

"He's telling her the Berserker are coming." Stated Astrid "I guess we're signing a treaty with them."

"Ugh!" Cried Ruffnut "I hate those guys!"

"I know!" Agreed Astrid

"Ruff! Astrid!"

The two girls turned around to see Snotlout running towards them

"I have to tell you something," he gasped "It's very important."

"Well then tell us!" exclaimed Astrid

"Okay," he stated "hang on, let me catch my breath!"

"Snotlout!" Cried Ruffnut "you said it was important!"

"It is!" Cried Snotlout "But I ran from all the way across the village!...Okay, So, I was talking to Tuffnut when I brought up Hiccup and he didn't remember who he was."

"NO!" Yelled Astrid "How could he just forget everything we've been through together?"

"I don't get it," Stated Ruffnut.

"I was talking to your brother-" started Snotlout

"Not that!" She cried "I don't get why people are forgetting. I mean, it's like he just disappeared one day, this Taylor girl appeared, and then no-one remembers him except us. Then we start to forget as well!"

"we have to do something." Decided Astrid

"And fast," Nodded Snotlout "I don't know how long until we forget as well."

* * *

>Hiccup watched from the side as Alvin talked to the Berserk Cheif, who for some reason didn't look older than sixteen. He couldn't hear what they were saying, but he knew it was about him. He hoped their conversation would never end, he didn't want to go with the Berserker. But, eventually, it ended and the two cheiftans walked over to him.

"Alright, Dauger." Stated Alvin "You can have the boy, but I want my side of the deal."

"Yeah, yeah." Dauger waved his hand, nonchalantly "Alright boys!"

Two large Berserk warriors carried a large crate that Hiccup suspected was full of jewels and gold and other riches.

"Okay!" Dauger stated "If we're done here, I need to set sail again. I have a treaty to sign."

He sauntered back to the ship, with Hiccup in tow. The first thing Dauger did when they got on the ship was send Hiccup off to clean his captain quarters, which were a mess, of course. When he told Hiccup to meet him back on deck for 'fun' Hiccup knew he was in trouble.

He had this strange feeling that Dauger's idea of fun would be very different from his. He wasn't sure why, but he was positive it would involve weapons and pain.

* * *

>Yes, I am very, very mean. I let Hiccup be happy for about 2 chapters. But don't worry, it gets better...hopefully. I had to pus Dauger in, I, personally, think he's an awesome villain. I'm hoping to put Iris back in at some point.
**

Also, I don't mean to sink anyone's ship, but this story is not hiccstrid. I don't ship them. It's just going to be friendship between them. But it's not Ruffcup either. There's not going to be any pairings in this story.
>

7. Chapter 7

Another chapter. I felt really bad so I uploaded this one as fast as I could. So, nothing new to say except, enjoy.

* * *

>apparently, according to Dauger, fun was sword fighting with a boy who obviously had no idea how to use a sword. By the end Hiccup was covered in cuts and bruises. He wondered how Toothless was doing and if he had been able to escape yet. But he barely had time to wonder about his dragon, he was too busy trying to avoid Dauger.

Of course, Dauger would always find him at some point. At first, he let Hiccup wander around the boat, probably thinking he couldn't go anywhere. But eventually he got sick of always having to find him. He finally decided to lock him up when he spotted Hiccup staring at the water, wondering if it was worth it to jump. Of course he couldn't read minds, but it was pretty obvious what he was thinking.

So now Hiccup sat in the small storage room with a rope tied around his waist, the other side attached to the wall. Most of the time, the Berserkers just ignored him. But every once and awhile, when the seas were calm and there wasn't much to do, Hiccup would be dragged back to the deck and have a sword fight with Dager. Or, lots of little sword fights.

"Get up!"

Hiccup jumped to his feet at the Berserk warrior's command. The warrior untied the rope and led him to the deck. They handed him a sword as he stood to face Dager.

Dager rushed at him and Hiccup quickly ducked to stop him from slicing his head off. Dager threw another blow that Hiccup tried to parry, but his sword just flew out of his hand.

When he got his sword back, he was able to avoid Dager's blows until his sword was knocked out again. It went on like this for awhile until the fifth round.

Hiccup was getting a little tired of all the name calling and sword fighting. The Berserkers were just making fun of him. So when Dager rushed him, Hiccup parried the blow. Dager looked surprised as Hiccup held his sword in place, staring defiantly into Dager's eyes. Dager threw another blow, which Hiccup also parried. This went on for a little bit until Hiccup decided to throw in his own blows.

He swung his sword towards Dager's head, which the Berserker parried. Then, Hiccup swung his sword around, hitting the hilt on Dager's hand, causing him to let go of the sword. Hiccup stood triumphantly in front of him. Then he realized that he'd done. Dager was going to be mad. He'd just made a fool of him. Hiccup was in for a lot of pain.

* * *

>Astrid led Snotlout and Ruffnut through the forest. They were trying to find anything that could help them figure out what had happened to Hiccup. They had been searching for hours but none of them complained or stopped for a break. Usually, Snotlout would, but he seemed to be much more serious now that his cousin was in possible danger.

"There." Pointed Ruffnut.

Astrid and Snotlout followed her finger and saw a cave in the distance. It was at the top of a cliff and there seemed to be smoke coming out of it.

"What about it?" asked Snotlout

"Maybe whoever is in there can help." Stated Ruffnut

"It's probably just some runaway from some tribe." Stated Snotlout
"We have to keep searching for Hiccup!"

"Well, maybe they know." Stated Astrid "Or, what if it is Hiccup! What if he's been hiding there!"

"Alright." Nodded Snotlout

So, the three friends carefully climbed the cliff. There was one point where Ruffnut almost slipped but luckily Snotlout was behind her and was able to catch her. It took awhile, but soon they were by the cave. They edged around the wall and into the cave. There was a small fire burning and above it was a pot that smell delicious.

The trio suddenly realized how hungry they were and started to make towards the pot.

"Shouldn't you ask first?"

The three spun a round to see a young girl, about their age, with black short hair. she had a mark on her cheek in the shape of an eye and her eyes were sown shut.

"Um, sorry." Stated Astrid, suddenly not so hungry "We're just looking for our friend."

"Hiccup." Stated the girl

"H-How did you know?" Asked Astrid

"I'm a seer." the girl smiled dryly "I know these things. Besides, I've met him."

"You did?!" Cried Astrid "where is he?"

"Such a hurry." tutted the seer "Aren't you going to introduce yourselves?"

Astrid bit down her anger. They were in a bit of a rush. But it was probably a bad idea to anger a seer.

"Right," She sighed "I'm Astrid, that's Snotlout, and that's Ruffnut."

"I'm Iris." the seer introduced herself "Would you like to sit down, eat?"

"We would love to," Stated Snotlout "But we really have to find Hiccup."

"Don't worry." Stated Iris "We still have about an hour or two."

"Until we loose our memories?" Squeaked Ruffnut

"No," Iris shook her head "Until he gets here."

"WHAT!?" Cried the three teens in union

"Hiccup's coming here!" Cried Astrid

"The berserkers are coming to sign that treaty, right?" Confirmed Iris

The teens nodded.

"Well, then, yes." stated Iris "He's coming here...If Alvin decided to go through with it."

"Yes!" Cried Astrid "He's coming back! He's coming back!"

"Don't get too excited." Stated Iris "He wont remember you. Plus, he'll be a servant to the Berserkers."

"We have to help him!" Cried Astrid

"We can't let him suffer!" Snotlout cried

"Let's go!" Cried Ruffnut

"Don't look too desperate." Stated the seer as they headed out the door "And wait until Dauger has left the ship."

The trio nodded and headed back towards the village.

* * *

>Hiccup stumbled into the bunk room.

"I'd use the captain's quarters." stated Dauger "But I really would rather not get blood in my room."

Hiccup gulped as he stared at the long, sharp Dagger that Dauger drew from his belt.

"I-I'm Sorry." He stuttered "But, you can't win every time, right?"

"I can win as many times as I please." Snarled Dauger

Hiccup cried out as the dagger slashed across his cheek, leaving a deep scratch right across the outcast mark. This caused Dauger to notice that for the first time.

"You know," He stated "You don't really belong to the outcasts anymore. Maybe it's time this mark is, renewed."

Hiccup stared at him, terrified.

"Pl-please don't." He begged

"You let the outcasts do it." Smirked Dauger

"I was too small to remember!" Cried Hiccup

"You were lucky." Smirked Dauger "This, you will defiently remember."

* * *

>The three teens ran down to the docks, watching the ship come closer and closer. They sat down, gasping for breath. Time seemed to be going extra slow, just to make them crazy. But, eventually, the ship docked and The Berserkers jumped off. The trio waited until Dauger had left with Stoick and most of the Berserkers had left, before they slipped onto the ship.

"Where could he be?" Wondered Ruffnut

"Split up guys!" Commanded Astrid "I'll go here, Ruff you go there, and Snotlout you go there."

The two nodded and they split up. Soon there was a yell from below decks.

"I found him!" Yelled Snotlout's voice "In the bunk room!"

The two girls ran in. Astrid was about to tell Snotlout to be quiet but she forgot about that when she saw Hiccup. He looked terrible. His cheek was bleeding heavily, he was dirty, and he was lightly sobbing. He seemed to only be half aware of his surroundings. He was able to sense they were there, but he didn't react other than slight movements.

"How are we going to get him out?" Asked Astrid

"I got it." Snotlout waved his hand

He scooped his cousin up in his arms who let out a small sob.

"Can you carry him all the way to the healer?" Asked Astrid

"Yeah." Snotlout nodded "He's not that heavy, I'm worried they didn't feed him enough."

"We have to hurry!" cried Ruffnut "We don't know when the Berserkers will be back, and we need to get Hiccup to the healer."

The other two teens nodded and slipped off the ship and ran towards the healer, carefully keeping in the shadows, with Hiccup moaning every once and awhile.

They ran into the healers only to run straight out again. There were about five Berserkers in there. So, they went around the corner and Snotlout set Hiccup down.

"I'll go try and get them to leave." Stated ruffnut "You two stay here with Hiccup."

She slipped around the corner and wandered up to the Berserkers.

"Hey, uh, Dauger wants you to go meet him in the great hall." Ruffnut stated

"No," Stated a Berserker "Dauger told us to go here. He needs good, strong warriors. So we must get these wounds fixed."

"Yeah, well," stated Ruffnut "Dauger says he wants you back in the great hall, so, yeah, better get moving."

"He said we could skip the meeting today." Stated another Berserker "He said we need to get fixed. We can't fight with these wounds."

"Um, but," Stated Ruffnut "He said this one was important and to come get you."

"Oh yeah," A Berserker raised his eyebrows "What's the secret word?"

"Uh, what?" Wondered Ruffnut "The secret word? um...Pineapples?"

"No." Snarled a Berserker "There is no secret word. You're a liar. Dauger doesn't want us to come to any meeting. You just want us gone. Why? Don't feel comfortable with us here? well, guess what, you can't stop us."

Ruffnut backed up as the Berserkers advanced. They really were crazy.

"Hey!"

Ruffnut spun around to see Tuffnut running up the hill.

"Hey," He cried "Get away from my sister! What good will it do hurting her? Besides, you have to meet Dauger."

"Oh, uh, we do?" Stated the Berserkers "Oh, we thought she was just trying to get rid of us. well, if there's two people who says we need to go, it must be true. Let's go boys, uh, sorry young lady."

"Thanks, Tuff." She smiled "No problem. I knew I needed to help, but now I've got to go back to Fishlegs. See you later."

She waved to her brother and ran around the corner to get the other teens.

"They're gone." She stated "Let's go!"

Snotlout and Astrid nodded and carried Hiccup into the healer's house. She motioned for them to leave as she fixed him.

"How long?" Asked Astrid

The healer held up ten fingers.

"Okay." Nodded Astrid

They wandered around nearby for about fifteen minutes before heading back, they figured extra time was probably good.

When they got there, Hiccup was awake but he wasn't sitting up. He didn't look that great, but that was probably obvious.

"Hey." Stated Ruffnut

Hiccup flinched as his head whipped around.

"How are you doing?" Asked Ruffnut

"O-okay." Hiccup stuttered "Hey! You're the girl from my vision!"

"Wh-what?" Wondered Astrid

"Um, nothing, sorry." Muttered Hiccup, embarrassed

"We should get him out of here before the berserkers come back."
whispered Snotlout

"Good idea." Nodded Astrid "Hey, can you walk?"

Hiccup nodded and swung his legs over, flinching slightly. He was a little wobbly, but other than that he walked fine. They, cautiously, lead him into Astrid's house and all gathered in her bedroom.

"Um, this is kind of awkward." Stated Snotlout

"Oh shut up!" Cried Astrid

"I'm going to go get some food." sighed Ruffnut "I'll be right back."

Astrid sat Hiccup down on the bed, sitting down on the edge herself, along with Snotlout.

"Are you okay?" Asked Astrid

"I think so," Hiccup nodded "Why did you help me?"

Astrid and Snotlout shared a look of light panic. What would they tell him?

"You looked like you needed help." Stated Astrid "We couldn't let you suffer."

"Thanks." Nodded Hiccup

"I got it!"

They all jumped as Ruffnut ran into the room with piles upon piles of food.

"Who's hungry?" She smiled

She placed all the food on the bed and sat down next to Astrid. Hiccup stared at the food, mouth watering.

"You can have it." Stated Astrid

"Really?" Wondered Hiccup

"Yeah." She smiled "you seem hungry."

"Thanks." smiled Hiccup

Astrid watched as he inhaled the food, wondering why anyone would hurt someone as sweet as him.

* * *

>Yay! They saved him! Now they just have to fix time and save Toothless. Review plz :)

8. Chapter 8

*Yay! Next chapter! I'm currently uploading this on my grandmother's computer that keeps crashing and deleting my stories. Fortunately it didn't delete any of this chapter. But one of my other stories I was almost done with a chapter and it almost deleted the whole thing. but i was able to save it. Then it crashed again, and I couldn't save that part. I was so mad! So I finished this chapter instead.

It's kind of funny how all my other family members are getting ready for christmas and I'm writing. Not only that, but It's kind of a dark story. But I did vacuum a little bit.

On another note, this story is currently my story with the most reviews. Yay! but Protected still has the most views.

Anyways, enjoy. ;)

*** * ***

>Snotlout ran quietly into Astrid's house, knocking on her bedroom door.

"Can I come in?" He asked

"No, Snotlout." Stated Astrid, sarcastically "I'm going to make the person who's helping us stay out there."

"Haha," Snotlout rolled his eyes "Very funny. Well, I didn't know if you were changing or something."

"Yes, Snotlout" Astrid stated, sarcastically again "I'm changing well Hiccup and Ruffnut are in the room with me."

"Well," Cried Snotlout "How was I supposed to know they were in there?"

"Isn't Hiccup almost always in here?" Asked Ruffnut

"Just come in!" Yelled Astrid

So, Snotlout quickly slipped through the door.

"Okay," He stated "The Berserkers are supposed to be leaving tomorrow. But Dauger's pissed that Hiccup has magically disappeared and probably will spend forever looking for him."

"Well then," Stated Ruffnut "we have a problem. Hiccup can't stay here forever, plus Dauger will probably want to search all the houses."

"If that lunatic comes anywhere near my house..." Astrid made a violent gesture in the air and Hiccup flinched.

"The point is," Ruffnut explained "We should probably find somewhere else where he could stay. Somewhere far away."

"What about Iris?" Wondered Astrid

"Iris?" Wondered Hiccup "Like, the seer?" The other three teens nodded "yeah, she's nice!"

"Okay," Stated Snotlout "So, tonight, we'll sneak out and get Hiccup to Iris."

They all agreed to this and decided to get some sleep now, so they would be wide awake tonight.

Snotlout and Ruffnut left as Astrid and Hiccup laid down. Astrid was sleeping on a makeshift bed next to her real bed. Hiccup said he'd sleep on it, sense he'd never really slept on a real bed before. But she said that's exactly why he was sleeping on the bed.

That night Astrid and Hiccup silently slipped out of the house. They made it to the edge of the forest without any problem, where they met Ruffnut and Snotlout.

"What took you guys so long?" Asked Ruffnut

"Sorry," Whispered Astrid "We woke up late."

The other two shrugged and they ran through the forest, now not caring about noise. Though they should've. They were just starting to see the cave in the distance when they were suddenly surrounded by Berserk warriors.

Snotlout quickly shoved Hiccup into some bushes next to them as Dauger strutted up.

"Oh, so sorry." he apologized, though there was no sympathy in his voice "I thought you were someone else."

"Oh, yes, well" Stated Astrid "Now you see we're not the person you were looking for, so if you and your warriors could just leave us be."

"But, why," wondered Dauger "Why were you out here so late?"

"Just taking a midnight stroll." Lied Ruffnut, hurriedly "Yep, three friends just taking a friendly midnight stroll. Just three of us. Only three. _Three! _A trio! like the thr-"

"Ruffnut!" Scolded Astrid "Shut up!"

"Sorry." Mumbled Ruffnut

Dauger stared at them, suspiciously.

"Are you sure there's only three of you?" He asked

"I think we made that pretty clear." Stated Snotlout, quietly

"What?!" Cried Dauger

"Nothing!" Cried Snotlout

One of the Berserker warriors glanced suspiciously at the bush where Hiccup was hiding. Astrid wondered how they were going to get out of this.

The warrior poked the bush with the hilt of his axe. Nothing. Astrid held her breath as the warrior continued to poke the bush, but Hiccup was staying quiet.

Astrid was just thinking it might be okay when the warrior hit the axe rather hard and there was a pained yell from the bush. Astrid closed her eyes and quietly cursed. When she opened her eyes the warrior had pulled Hiccup up and Dauger and smirking at them.

"I think your trio has an extra." He smirked

Ruffnut, Astrid, and Snotlout exchanged panicked looks. As Dauger walked by Astrid kicked his feet out from under him and slammed her foot into his stomach.

"Sorry," She smirked "you can't have him."

Snotlout tackled the warrior who was holding Hiccup, causing him to drop his axe. Hiccup quickly picked this up and smacked the next warrior who rushed at them.

"Let's get out of here!" Cried Ruffnut, as they fended off the warriors.

They all mentally agreed this was a good idea and rushed off, with Berserk warriors right behind them.

"How are we going to climb this?" Wondered Snotlout as they got to the mountain "It's hard enough as it is, without a bunch of angry warriors chasing us."

"We'll have to try!" Cried Astrid

"Well let's get going!" Cried Ruffnut "Stop talking!"

So the four friends started to climb the mountain. For a moment they thought the Berserkers weren't going to follow them, as they stayed at the bottom. But then they heard Dauger yell at them to follow them.

They tried to climb faster, but the Berserkers were gaining fast. Hiccup yelped as one of them grabbed his foot and he kicked him in the face. Snotlout quickly grabbed his cousin and pulled him up. They quickly ran into the cave, before realizing they'd just led themselves to a dead end. They didn't even see Iris.

They turned around as the Berserkers advanced on them. Astrid suddenly realized that Hiccup wasn't with them anymore. She looked around, wondering where he could've gone when Ruffnut suddenly disappeared. She was starting to panic now.

Suddenly a hand wrapped around her mouth and pulled her into the shadows. She tried to fight against her captor until she realized who it was. She stumbled backwards, next to Ruffnut and Hiccup as Iris pulled Snotlout in.

Snotlout spun around and stared at them in confusion. He opened his mouth but Iris pressed her finger to her lips and led them down the cave.

"Is everyone okay?" She asked when they'd gone far enough.

They all nodded.

"What was that?" Wondered Astrid

"It's an illusion." explained Iris "So that people think it's a dead end when the cave really goes even farther. It's so people don't find me."

The teens nodded and looked around the cave.

"So," Stated Ruffnut "Now what?"

"We have to wait out the warriors." Sighed Astrid, flopping down on the floor

"I'm hungry!" Wined Snotlout

Of course, now that everything seemed to be okay he was back to his old self. But the rest of them agreed they were hungry as well and sat down for some food.

"We can't go back now." Sighed Astrid "Technically, we stole an apposing chief's property."

"Oh, thanks." Stated Hiccup, sarcastically

Astrid shrugged and gave him a sheepish smile.

"I think you should sleep." Stated Iris

"But, we were sleeping all day." argued Ruffnut

"I meant, Hiccup should get some sleep." Stated Iris

"But I was sleeping all day as well." He stated

"Trust me," Stated Iris "You'll want to be rested. If I'm correct, you have an important day tomorrow."

Hiccup stared at her in confusion but went and laid down to sleep nonetheless.

"We need to talk." Stated Iris, turning to the other three teens "If you want to get the world back to the way it was before, hiccup needs to rove himself."

"How does he do that?" Wondered Astrid

"He needs to rewrite fate correctly." explained Iris

"He needs to meet Toothless!" Astrid cried

"He's already met Toothless." Iris shook her head

"Then what-" Suddenly Astrid understood "No. Not again."

"Yes." Iris nodded "And there's one more step after that."

"What are you guys talking about!?" Cried Snotlout "You do realize that the rest of us don't know what you're talking about!"

"not all of you need to know!" Snapped Iris "Not a word of this to Hiccup! Now, get some sleep. in the morning, you're getting Toothless back."

Hiccup's heart pounded in his chest. He didn't understand anything of what they were talking about, but it was freaking him out. All he knew, was he had a huge project ahead of him.

* * *

>What must he do? And yes, Toothless is coming back. Yay! I wanted to explain Taylor a little more, but she may not come up in this story again. But, if you want, I can write a little extra chapter-thing when this story is finished about her, if i don't explain her in the story. So, say if you think I should. Review plz! :)

9. Chapter 9

I'm SO sorry for not updating sooner! I got a new computer for Xmas (yay!) and I had to switch all my stuff from my old computer onto my new computer, but then it was at my grandmother's so I couldn't use it. but I updated now.

Warning for violence near the end

* * *

>Astrid, Snotlout, Ruffnut, and Hiccup slipped quietly through the village, towards the docks. They jumped in a boat and quickly set off. No-one said a word until Berk was a dot in the distance. Snotlout and Ruffnut were at the wheel, trying to remember how to get to Outcast island.

"Hey," Smiled Astrid, walking up to Hiccup who was looking over the edge of the boat "You okay?"

"I'm fine." Hiccup nodded

"Are you sure?" She asked "You look a little sick."

"Just worried." He sighed "For Toothless, my dragon."

"I kn-" Astrid suddenly remembered she wasn't supposed to know who Toothless was "That's a good name."

It was silent for a few minutes in which Astrid studied Hiccup's heavily scared face.

"Why would they do that?" She whispered

"What?" Wondered Hiccup

"Nothing." She answered "I was just wondering why anyone would hurt

you so badly."

Hiccup shrugged.

"I don't know." He mumbled

Astrid studied the marks on his cheeks. Why, of all places, did they have to put it on his face? She reached up to lightly touch the Berserker mark and he flinch.

"Sorry." She apologized, pulling her hand back

"It's okay." Stated Hiccup "It's just raw."

"Hey, guys!" Cried Snotlout "We've got someone on our tail."

Astrid and Hiccup leaned over the edge, and sure enough there was a boat following them. Hiccup groaned as he recognized the Berserker sign on the flag.

"Hurry," whispered Ruffnut, even though the Berserkers were too far to hear anything "Get Hiccup below decks."

"But Dagur already knows he's with us." Stated Astrid

"Just do it!" hissed Ruffnut "I've got a plan!"

"It better work!" cried Astrid

She pulled Hiccup below decks and Ruffnut and Snotlout exchanged looks that clearly said 'I hope this works.'

Ruffnut blocked the door to below as Snotlout pulled the boat to a stop. The Berserker boat pulled to a stop beside them and Dagur strutted over to the side.

"Where is he?" He snapped

"Who?" Wondered Ruffnut

"Don't play dumb!" Snapped Dagur

"We honestly don't know." Stated Ruffnut

"I don't believe you." Snarled Dagur "now tell me before I go over there and cut you up.

"Okay!" Cried Snotlout "We'll tell you."

Ruffnut sent him a 'don't you dare' look and he mouthed 'sorry' to her.

"He's on Outcast Island." Stated Snotlout and Ruffnut face palmed

"but we saw you leave not two hours ago." stated Dagur "You can't get to Outcast Island and back in two hours. Besides, why are you two here? Where's the other girl?"

"Oh, her." Stated Snotlout "She took Hiccup to Outcast Island earlier, we're meeting them there."

"Well then," Stated Dagaur "you wouldn't mind if we followed you."

"Oh, um." Stated Snotlout "We'd really rather you didn't"

Dagaur glared at them and placed his hand on his dagger.

"You know what," Stated Snotlout "On second thought, the more the better, right?"

Dagaur smirked and turned his back to them, ordering his men to follow them. Ruffnut and Snotlout smirked and high fived.

"We make a great team." Sighed Ruffnut

"Yeah." Agreed Snotlout

"HEY!"

They both jumped at Astrid's sudden yell.

"oh, that's right." Nodded Ruffnut "I'll explain this to them and you make sure we don't crash."

Snotlout nodded and started to drive the ship again. Ruffnut opened the door and slipped inside.

"Okay." Explained Ruffnut "You guys need to stay down here for a bit."

She quickly explained the plan to them and Astrid glared at her.

"that's a terrible plan!" accused Astrid

"You got a better one!" snapped Ruffnut

"Yes!" Cried Astrid "destroy the berserkers ship and run away!"

"No!" Hissed Ruffnut "they need to trust us!"

"It doesn't matter if they trust us or not!" Cried Astrid

"It does if we want them to fall into the hands of Alvin." Ruffnut snapped

"Okay, fine." Sighed Astrid "but if this plan goes wrong and Hiccup ends up in Dagaur's hands again I will kill you."

"Got it." Nodded Ruffnut "Just stay down here!"

She slipped out the door and tried to find the map to Outcast island. Why couldn't they just know their way there?

* * *

>By the time they reached Outcast island all four of the teens

were rigid from worry. Snoutlout had a few too many splinters from gripping the wheel too tight.

"Okay!" Cried Daguar, jumping over the edge onto their ship, making Ruffnut dig her nails into her arm "where is he?"

"This way." stated Snotlout

He led them off the ship and they snuck into the great hall.

"I don't see him." stated Dagaur

"We don't know his exact location!" Cried Ruffnut "But it's most likely he'll end up here. So why don't you go over there and wait for him."

Ruffnut held her breath as Dagaur look at her, skeptically. Maybe he wasn't buying their story? But he straitened up and walked towards the center of the room.

"What are you doing here?" Asked the deep voice of Alvin

"I'm here for my property." Stated Dagaur

"I don't have anything of yours." Huffed Alvin

"You do." Stated Dagaur "We had a deal."

"yes." Nodded Alvin, as if it was obvious (which it was) "We had a deal. Now we're done, can't you move on? Find someone else to bug!"

"I know you took him." Snapped Dagaur "You didn't keep your end of the deal. Now, I get to kill you."

"What?!" Cried Alvin "I didn't break our deal. Get out of here."

"Stop playing dumb!" Snarled Dagaur

He drew his sword and Alvin only blocked it just in time.

"Let's get out of here." Whispered Snotlout

Ruffnut nodded and the duo tip-toed out the door.

* * *

>Astrid listened until she was positive that Ruffnut and Snotlout had led Daguar far enough away. She cracked the door open and slipped out, with Hiccup right behind her.

"Okay," she whispered "Let's hurry."

Hiccup nodded and they slipped around the village, towards the arena.

"You're sure he's in here?" Asked Astrid

"Not really." Stated Hiccup

"What if he's not in there?" Wondered Astrid

"I'm going to hope he is." Hiccup stated

He pulled on the lever and the gates all slowly opened. There were tons of dragons. Nightmares, nadders, gronkles, skauldrons, even a skrill. but no Night Fury.

Hiccup sighed and Astrid put a hand on his shoulder. THUD! they both jumped as they heard the loud sound. They spun around to see Alvin and Daguar run in with Snotlout and Ruffnut in tow.

"Sorry!" Cried Ruffnut "We tried to stop them! But they heard the dragons and ran over!"

"What are _you _doing here?" Snarled Alvin "I thought I got rid of you."

"I did too." Stated Hiccup, innocently "But then you went and kidnapped me and I ended up here again."

Dagaur snarled at Alvin and grabbed Hiccup by his upper arm, dragging him back towards the docks.

"Hey!" Protested Astrid

She tried to run after them but hiccup motioned for her to stay.

'find Toothless' he mouthed

'fine.' she mouthed back

She was itching to run after them, but she trusted Hiccup and she stayed where she was.

"Where's the Night Fury?" She snarled

"That's none of your business." Snarled Alvin

"I believe it is." Stated Astrid "That's not your dragon."

"You know." Gaspd Alvin

Astrid smirked and nodded.

"Impossible!" cried Alvin "That seer said-no. She left an opening. She left a way to fix this!...Well don't worry. i can fix that."

He smirked and advanced on Astrid, his sword in hand.

* * *

>Hiccup stumbled onto the ship before turning to face Dagaur.

"Why are you so obsessed with me?!" He cried

"Obsessed?" Smirked Dagaur "Obsessed is not exactly the word I would use. Maybe, protective?"

"I think that word means something very different to you than it does to me." Stated Hiccup

"You seem a little bolder than last time I saw you." Stated Dagaur

"Yeah." stated Hiccup "I learned how to stand up for myself."

"That's good." smirked Dagaur

"It is?" Wondered hiccup

"Yes." Dagaur smirked "it's going to make this that much more entertaining."

Hiccup backed up as Dagaur slowly advanced on him. His courage was draining out of him.

"Stop it!" Hiccup cried "I can't take it anymore! I try and stand up to you and all you do is a simple smirk and I'm terrified! Why can't I have the upper hand? Just once! Why can't i stand my ground just once!?"

Dagaur smirked and Hiccup was horrified to find a wall stopping him from going any farther.

"Oh, hiccup." Smirked Dagaur, grabbing the younger boy's chin, forcing him to look at him "If only you knew."

Before Hiccup could say anything Dagaur pulled him closer and pressed his lips to his. Hiccup stood there in shock for a minute before shoving the larger boy off of him.

"Stay away from me!" He yelled

He squirmed out of Dagaur's grip and bolted off the ship. He ran towards the arena only to stop and stare. Snotlout had been tied up by an Outcast warrior. Ruffnut laid on the ground, blood gushing from her chest. And Astrid had her back against the ground, looking up defiantly into Alvin's eyes, who had his sword raised above her chest.

Hiccup tried to call out to them, but his voice didn't seem to work. Hiccup caught Snotlout's eye and sent him a panicked look.

'Run!' mouthed Snotlout

'No!' Hiccup mouthed back

'Go!' Snotlout mouthed

'No!' Hiccup mouthed

"For Thor's sake! Run Hiccup!" Yelled Snotlout "Get out of here! We'll be okay!"

But they weren't okay. That much was obvious.

Alvin turned and Hiccup could see the fire in his eyes. He turned around and ran, tears spilling out of his eyes. He ran until he couldn't run any farther. He collapsed on a rock and buried his head in his hands, bringing his knees up to his chest.

This was all his fault. He wasn't a hundred percent sure how, but he somehow knew it was. He knew it was his fault, and he needed to fix it.

* * *

>I'm sure I'm going to get so much hate for this chapter. Please don't hurt me too much! hides in the corner Sorry about Dagaur, but that most likely won't come up again! I promise! And I'm so sorry about Ruffnut! I almost cried well writing it!

Plz review!

10. Chapter 10

Next chapter! yay! Sorry, a bit of a late story update. I have nothing to say except, enjoy :)

* * *

>Astrid groaned and picked herself up off the floor.

"Are you okay?"

Astrid glanced up to see Snotlout standing across from her, resting against the bars of the cell.

"What happened?" She asked, standing up completely

"Our plan went terribly wrong." Stated Snotlout

"Yeah." Snapped Astrid "It was a terrible plan!"

"well did you have a better plan?" Snapped Snotlout

Astrid glared at him.

"This is all your fault." She snarled "If we didn't carry out with your horrible, idiotic plan, then maybe we wouldn't be here. Maybe we could be on our way home right now. Maybe Hiccup wouldn't be off who knows where and maybe Ruffnut would still be with us! How am I supposed to tell Tuffnut his sister is dead?!"

Snotlout opened his mouth but then thought better of it and shut it again, suddenly very interested in his shoes.

"Do you think we can fix this?" Snotlout finally asked

Astrid didn't answer. She just glared at the wall behind Snotlout.

"Thanks." He mumbled, turning around

"No."

"What?"

"No." Repeated Astrid "I don't think we can fix this."

"Well aren't you just a little ray of sunshine." Stated Snotlout, sarcastically

"_We_ can't fix this." Stated Astrid "But maybe Hiccup can."

Maybe.

* * *

>Ruffnut wandered down the hallway. She gazed at the cells upon cells of dragons. She stopped to look at drinking scaldron and an Outcast guard walked right through her.

She glared in the direction of the guard, but he took no notice. She was starting to get used to this strange floating sensation. But every time someone walked through her and was a whole new level of weird.

She knew there was something she had to do. But how was she supposed to do that when he couldn't even see her.

She inwardly groaned and kept walking. She stopped in front of a rather large cage. Looking in she could see a large black dragon, sleeping inside.

"Hey there, Toothless." She smiled

The dragon raised his head. He looked around in confusion. Ruffnut sighed, knowing the dragon couldn't see her. But he could obviously sense her.

"Can you hear me?" She wondered Toothless wandered up to the front of the cage and looked around, as if trying to find an invisible object. Which he was sort of doing.

"Listen." stated Ruffnut "I'm going to try and get you out of here. then you have to try and find Hiccup."

Toothless squinted. It was obviously driving him crazy, not being able to see the voice of the girl.

"toothless." Ruffnut sighed "Are you listening to me?"

toothless looked a few feet to her right.

"Obviously not." She muttered "I'll be back later."

She wandered away and Toothless stared at the wall, extremely confused. She walked into another hallway where she could hear loud yelling.

"This is all your fault! If we didn't carry out with your horrible, idiotic plan, then we wouldn't be here!"

Ruffnut sighed and walked away from the sound of her fighting friends.

"We can't fix this. But maybe Hiccup can."

Ruffnut stopped. She knew what she needed to do. She bolted down the hallway until she was out of the building. She could hear yelling as she ran through the village, but she didn't care. What did she care about a stupid fight?

"Let go of me!"

She froze. She knew that voice. that's why she should care about a 'stupid' fight. She ran around the corner to find two large Berserkers. One was holding Hiccup's arms behind his back well the other paced back and forth.

"I bet we could get a load of money off you." Smirked the pacing one "Dagaur will pay a lot for your pretty face."

"Dagaur's not getting anywhere near me." Spat Hiccup, though fear showed in his eyes.

"We'll see about that." smirked the Berserker

A sort of anger boiled inside Ruffnut. She could feel it burning her insides. It was red hot, making her forget everything. Only one thought entered her head: 'Her friend was in danger. She needed to help him.'

"And just what do you think you're doing!?" She yelled, storming up to them to her surprise they spun around and their eyes widened in fear and wonder.

"n-n-no-not p-possible." Stuttered the no-longer-pacing Berserker "y-your dead."

"Of course I'm dead!" Snapped Ruffnut "What did you expect to happen after I got stabbed?!"

"S-s-sorry." Stuttered the Berserker

"You better be sorry." Snarled Ruffnut "Now, what are you doing?!"

"we-we're, we're just trying to please our Chief." Answered the Berserker

"Well, do something else to please him!" Demanded Ruffnut "You can't have him!"

"Why not?" wondered the Berserker, a little less intimidated now "are you just saying that?"

"Yes and no." Stated Ruffnut "I'm saying it. But it's on Thor's orders."

Ruffnut prayed that the gods wouldn't punish her for using them as an excuse.

"Yeah right." stated the second Berserker "And I'm Loki's personal assistant"

"Don't insult Harriett!" snarled Ruffnut "she's a wonderful girl!"

"Loki actually has a personal assistant!" cried the Berserker

"Of course he has a personal assistant, half-wit!" Yelled Ruffnut "Only the best warriors can be the gods personal assistants, so you're obviously no fit. And he hates when people don't listen to his brother!"

"But-"

"Do you want to be eternally punished?!" roared Ruffnut

"here!" squeaked the first Berserker, shoving Hiccup towards her "Take him! D-don't tell Thor about this, please."

"Don't disagree with Thor ever again." Snarled Ruffnut "now get out of here! And don't tell anyone about this."

"O-of course." nodded the Berserkers, scampering off

Ruffnut smirked to herself, happy her excuse worked.

"What happened?"

Ruffnut looked at Hiccup who had a strange mix of fear, relief, and wonder on his face.

"It's okay." smiled Ruffnut "I'm not going to hurt you."

"But, how?" Wondered Hiccup "You died."

"yes." Snapped Ruffnut "I died. I think we went over this."

"I mean, how are you here?" wondered Hiccup

"Ever heard of the after life?" Explained Ruffnut

"yes." Nodded hiccup "But shouldn't you be in Valhalla?"

"Not yet." stated Ruffnut "i need to fix something first."

She gestured for him to follow her and they slipped through the village.

"That way to Toothless, that way to Astrid and Snotlout." Ruffnut pointed in two different directions

They could hear voices behind them.

"And i doubt once you get one you'll be able to get the other."
stated Ruffnut

Hiccup looked back and forth between the two. The voice were closer.

"we don't have much time." stated Ruffnut

They could hear the Outcast and Berserker weapons clanking against their wielder's armor.

"You have to hurry!" Ruffnut bit her lip in worry

The footsteps were unnervingly close.

"Choose now!" She yelled

"That way!" Yelled Hiccup

They both bolted down the hallway, almost missing the cell they were looking for.

"Toothless!" Cried Hiccup, happily

Toothless cheered at his friend's return.

"Hurry." Whispered Ruffnut "You have to go!"

"how?" Asked Hiccup "Toothless can't fly."

"There may be something of your interest in Alvin's office."
explained Ruffnut "once you get there, leave. I'll meet you there."

"Meet me where?"

but Ruffnut was gone. Hiccup looked around in confusion and panic.
Toothless made a sound in the back of his throat and Hiccup quickly grabbed the keys from a sleeping guard. He unlocked Toothless's door and the two of them slipped towards Alvin's office.

"What's here that I could use?" wondered hiccup, aloud

Toothless wandered over to a chest and knocked against it with his nose. Hiccup carefully opened the chest and gasped.

"Why would he have this?" Hiccup wondered, taking out a dusty saddle and fake tail fin

he quickly put it on his dragon and jumped on Toothless's back.

"Whoever made this must be a genius." smiled Hiccup and Toothless made a noise sort of like a laugh

Hiccup kicked the tail into action, not quite sure how he knew what to do, and they took off into the sky.

* * *

>I feel like not that much happened in this chapter. i promise the next one will be better! reviews always welcomed
:)

End
file.